Competitive Intel

POOP 911 Florissant = 404! Their page is GONE. They may have withdrawn from Florissant. TJ is the ONLY operator with Florissant customers + city landing page. PROTECT THIS TERRITORY.

Doggie Doodles still active in Florissant — $83/mo weekly vs your $108/mo. But your $70/mo flat rate beats their $90/mo.

Scoop Soldiers ($15/visit, first free) still expanding STL. Low-price competitor to watch.

Today's News

Pet Butler Franchise Attracting Corporate Executives (Mar 17)

GlobeNewsWire reports Pet Butler — a pet waste + dog walking franchise — is seeing a surge of corporate executives buying in for its "semi-absentee" model. Recurring revenue, low overhead, scalable. Why it matters: Validates the pet waste market is attracting serious money. Their model (waste removal + walking + sitting + shuttle) shows the upsell path TJ should consider. Also means more franchise competition coming to metros.

Business Ideas

1. Spring Cleanup Blitz Service — "Thaw & Haul"

One-time deep clean packages for yards that accumulated 3-4 months of winter waste. Charge $150-250 per yard. Times Union just ran "The snow melted — the dog poop did not" — this is peak demand RIGHT NOW. Upsell every cleanup into a recurring plan. Could book 10-15 cleanups in March alone from Facebook groups.

2. Property Manager Pet Waste Station Install & Service

Sell+install pet waste stations at apartment complexes ($200-400/unit), then charge $75-150/mo to service them (bag refills, emptying, cleaning). Doggie Doodles already has a commercial page for this. Low effort recurring revenue, and it's a foot in the door for full property waste removal contracts.

4 Tasks Franklin Could Handle

1. Directory submission blitz — Submit Tidy Tails to 10 free directories (Petworks, BringFido, MapQuest claim, Thumbtack, etc.). Copy-paste info ready. Would build backlinks + citations. ~2 hours of Franklin's time.
2. Automated review follow-up sequence — Build a system that texts customers 24hr after each Sunday service asking for a review. Currently manual. Could be a simple cron job + template.
3. Competitor price monitoring — Set up weekly auto-scrape of Doggie Doodles, Scoop Soldiers, POOP 911 pricing pages. Alert TJ if anyone changes prices or adds promos.
4. GBP post automation — 4 weeks of Google Business Profile posts are already written. Franklin could schedule/post them automatically so TJ never has to think about it.
