🎯 Why Mother's Day = Best Month After Easter

The Double Opportunity: Mother's Day works for BOTH businesses simultaneously. Tidy Tails: clean yard as a gift. TuffShed/WoodMaster: she shed as the ultimate gift. One month, two revenue streams, zero additional ad spend needed.

Mother's Day Win Math

Tidy Tails gift cleanups (5 × $75)	$375 one-time
New monthly subscriptions from gifters (3 × $70/mo)	$210/mo new MRR
LTV on those 3 converts (18 mo avg)	$3,780 LTV
TuffShed she shed sale (1 mid-range)	$400-600 commission
TuffShed WoodMaster garage/large sale (1)	$600-900 commission
Total Mother's Day Month Upside	~$5,000-6,000

Tidy Tails — The Gift Angle

Why Mom? Why Now?

Mom got the family dog. Mom also picks up most of the dog poop. A gift that eliminates her least-favorite chore = the most thoughtful gift of the year. Whoever buys this (husband, kids, adult children) gets credit for "actually thinking about what she hates doing."

She can't enjoy her backyard. The yard she planted flowers in, where she reads on the porch, where she hosts people — she avoids the grass because of the dogs. A clean yard = she gets her outdoor space back.

Gift subscriptions convert gift-buyers to recurring customers. The spouse/adult kid who signs up their mom as a "gift" often keeps the subscription running because mom loves it. $75 one-time gift → $840/yr LTV.

Adult children buying for mom is underserved. Most Tidy Tails messaging targets the household directly. The "gift this to your mom" angle opens a new buyer audience — adult kids in their 20s-40s who want a practical gift.

TuffShed/WoodMaster — The She Shed Angle

She Shed = Mother's Day Gold

The "she shed" trend is mainstream now. Every woman who watches HGTV has thought about it. Mother's Day is the one day a year where the purchase gets emotional justification — "I'm doing this for HER."

The gift that lasts forever. She shed, craft studio, yoga space, reading retreat, home office. Can be ordered in May and delivered in June — she gets the announcement for Mother's Day, the real gift arrives soon after.

Post-tariff pricing reality. The April 2 tariff is now in effect. "Buy before prices go up further" has shifted to "prices are up — buy before they go higher." Still a valid urgency anchor.

Target: Husbands/partners buying for wives. "She's been talking about a she shed for 3 years. This is the year." The #1 buyer is a husband who finally pulls the trigger because Mother's Day gives him permission.

17 Campaign Window

Apr 7-13

Soft launch — first posts go up. "Mother's Day is coming — we've got an idea." Plant the seed early.

Apr 14-20

Main push week 1. Gift messaging front and center. She shed posts. Customer referral texts mentioning gift cleanups.

Apr 21-27

Build urgency. "Book now to guarantee before Mother's Day." Remind existing customers to gift it.

Apr 28-May 4

Final push. "2 weeks left." "Last week to guarantee slot." Direct CTAs everywhere.

May 5-9

Last call. "This Saturday is last chance." Emergency slots. Heavy CTA pressure.

May 10

Mother's Day — post morning content. "Hope the moms in your life are enjoying their clean yards
