KNOWN ISSUES

Brave Search API — QUOTA EXHAUSTED

Monthly quota maxed (2001/2000 requests). Security scans relying on web search are blind until quota resets or plan is upgraded. Consider upgrading to a paid plan (~$3/mo) — this limits Franklin's ability to monitor threats and research competitors.

 fal.ai Credits Exhausted — Video ad production paused. Recharge before next ad batch.

 No GA4 / FB Pixel — Zero web analytics. Paid ads without tracking = throwing money blind. 15-minute fix, do it before any spend.

 backyardbuildingsstl.com — May show SSL browser warning. Needs HTTPS enforcement.

TODAY'S HEADLINE

Anthropic's Internal Data Exposed — Next Model Name "Mythos" Leaked

Anthropic had an apparent security lapse where details of their next unreleased model ("Mythos") and an invite-only CEO event were accessible in an "unsecured data trove." Fortune broke the story on March 26. Meanwhile, the company faces a First Amendment lawsuit related to a federal judge ruling that "punishing Anthropic is classic illegal First Amendment retaliation."

Why it matters to TJ: Franklin runs on Claude (Anthropic). This is a reminder that even AI companies aren't immune to data exposure. Keep API keys, business data, and customer info locked down. Also: "Mythos" is coming — expect new capabilities in the tools you use soon.

BUSINESS IDEAS

1. Poop-to-Fertilizer Composting Add-On Service

Partner with a local compost facility or set up a small-scale system to convert collected pet waste into compost sold to gardeners/nurseries. You're already collecting the raw material on every route. Charge customers a small "eco premium" (+$5/mo) for the sustainable option, and earn a side revenue stream from selling finished compost. St. Louis has a strong gardening community. No competitor offers this. Could also become a PR/marketing angle — "Tidy Tails: turning pet waste into garden gold." Cost to start: ~$500 for equipment research + a compost partnership call.

2. Dog Owner Neighborhood Directory App / Nextdoor-for-Dog-People

A hyper-local mobile app (or even a simple website) where St. Louis dog owners can find nearby dog services, post "my dog died at the vet" warnings, find dog walkers, and — importantly — subscribe to Tidy Tails. You'd be the founding sponsor, getting leads from every signup. Adjacent to WAXR model: build the platform, own the distribution. Minimal MVP: a free Google Form survey + Facebook Group with 1,000 members in 90 days. Then monetize via vendor listings. Cost to start: $0 for the MVP, $50/mo for a proper app down the road.

4 TASKS FRANKLIN COULD HANDLE (BUT ISN'T YET)

- Auto-schedule GBP posts via API — Franklin could draft AND schedule all 8 GBP posts for April/May automatically instead of TJ copy-pasting manually. Saves ~30 min/month forever.
- Weekly competitor price monitor — Auto-check Poop 2 Scoop and Dog Doody Defenders websites for pricing/promo changes and alert TJ if anything changes. 0 effort once set up.
- Lead follow-up text automation — Build a simple webhook or Zapier flow where new form submissions trigger the 5-minute follow-up text automatically. The lead response system is designed but still manual.

- Monthly revenue + customer count report — Auto-generate a simple PDF with customer count, revenue estimate, and goal progress every 1st of the month. Keeps TJ's eye on the number without any effort.

AI & SECURITY SCAN

OPENCLAW VERSION CHECK

- Running: OpenClaw 2026.3.28 (f9b1079)
- Build date: March 28, 2026 — updated yesterday
- Status: Current — no update available as of today

SECURITY WEB SCAN

Brave Search API Quota Exhausted (2001/2000)

Automated web searches for "OpenClaw security vulnerability," "Claude Anthropic security," and "AI agent security news" could NOT be completed. This has been a recurring issue — the overnight scan (3 AM) also failed for the same reason. Franklin cannot monitor threat intel until quota resets or the plan is upgraded. Recommend upgrading Brave API to a paid tier (~$3/mo) to prevent blind spots in security monitoring.

KNOWN AI SECURITY THREATS (THIS WEEK — VIA WEB FETCH)

Anthropic Internal Data Exposure (Mar 26)

An unsecured data store at Anthropic exposed internal details including the next model name ("Mythos") and CEO event details. No user data confirmed compromised, but this underscores that AI infrastructure is a target. Action: No immediate action needed for TJ, but monitor for any Claude API changes or key rotation requirements.

AI Transparency Issues (Mar 27–28)

The Verge reported on AI companies failing to be honest about training data and practices — even with each other. Relevant for any business relying on AI tools: vendors may change model behavior without clear disclosure. Action: Watch for any behavior changes in Franklin/Claude; update SOUL.md if system behavior shifts unexpectedly.

AI in Music / Deepfake Audio (Mar 27)

More than half of sample-based hip-hop is reportedly now AI-generated, often without disclosure. For TJ's video ads: be aware that AI-generated audio tools (music beds, voice) will face increasing legal scrutiny.

Stick to royalty-free verified stock music for all Tidy Tails ads.

RECOMMENDED SECURITY ACTIONS

- ❑ Upgrade Brave Search API to paid tier — restores full security scanning capability
- ❑ Recharge fal.ai credits before next video batch
- ❑ Rotate API keys if any were stored in environment variables longer than 90 days
- ❑ Install GA4 (analytics) + FB Pixel before any paid ad spend
- ❑ Verify SSL renewal reminder is set before May 17 expiry
